Photographer Joss Mullinger has attended the annual Cropredy Festival for the past decade and the result is this book, described as “a crazy car crash of images illustrating a glorious British audience dressed up to the nines for a weekend in a field”.

Together the images create a delightful and colourful portrait of a unique British occasion where festival-goers shrug off their conventional day to day attire and contribute themselves as vital elements of this highly visual, unique event. Additionally, a broad selection of stylish & colourful guest performers are featured as well as many members of the wide fraternity that is the Fairport Convention family, past and present.
